Life Fund

Halifax UK FTSE All Share

Fund Aim

To match as closely as possible the performance of the FTSE All-Share Custom Screened Index (the "Benchmark Index"), before deduction of fees, by investing in UK shares. The Fund aims to invest in shares of all of the companies within the Benchmark Index. This is often referred to as a 'full replication' approach. Where HIFML believes it can provide an advantage to the Fund in managing costs, to achieve a more efficient way of tracking the Benchmark Index, or where there are exceptional market circumstances, the Fund may include or exclude specific shares and/or other security types which are representative of a share in the Benchmark Index (such as depositary receipts). The Fund may also invest, up to 10%, in other funds to gain exposure to the Benchmark Index. Derivatives and stock lending may only be used for efficient portfolio management purposes. The Benchmark Index measures the performance of a sub-set of equity securities within the FTSE All-Share Index (the "Parent Index"). The Parent Index provides a representation of the returns of securities in the UK equity market by measuring the performance of shares of small, medium and large companies listed in the UK. The Benchmark Index excludes companies from the Parent Index based on the HIFML exclusions screening criteria in relation to controversial weapons, violations of United Nations Global Compact principles, Thermal Coal and Tar Sands as well as Tobacco.

Quarterly Fund Manager Review

UK equities posted a strong showing in Q1 2025, propelled by diversified sector performance and a global shift in investment flows away from the US. The FTSE All-Share advanced solidly, driven by large-cap strength, though small and mid-cap stocks faced persistent investor caution. The FTSE 100 outperformed, supported by robust corporate earnings and compelling valuations, while the FTSE 250 struggled amid economic concerns. Energy emerged as the top-performing sector, buoyed by global demand, followed closely by telecoms and healthcare. These sectors aligned with European trends, as investors pivoted from highly valued US technology stocks. In contrast, basic materials and consumer discretionary sectors weakened, hit hard by fears of US tariffs disrupting trade. Technology stocks also underperformed, reflecting a global sector downturn. Despite a turbulent global environment marked by US tariff uncertainties and stagflation worries, UK markets remained resilient. The UK's attractive valuations, trading at a significant discount to the S&P 500, continued to draw value-focused investors, particularly to large-cap stocks. However, the domestic economic outlook stayed mixed. Inflation rose to 3% in January, prompting the Bank of England to maintain a cautious stance on monetary policy, projecting a gradual rate reduction to 3.25% by year-end. Chancellor Rachel Reeves' Spring Statement, which outlined £8.4 billion in spending cuts to meet fiscal targets, unsettled markets in March, amplifying fears of stagflation. Small and mid-cap companies faced heightened scrutiny, with investors wary that increased defence spending and a tightening global trade landscape could lead to further tax increases or borrowing. Economic indicators painted a subdued picture. The UK narrowly avoided a recession in Q4 2024, with growth limping along at 0.1% quarter-on-quarter. Business confidence took a sharp hit in January, and consumer sentiment remained fragile, reflecting broader economic unease. Despite these challenges, UK equities held appeal for investors seeking value, with large-cap strength and sector resilience offering a buffer against global volatility.
