Dynamic Return

Fund Aim

The fund aims to provide long term growth and positive returns over a rolling 3-year basis (meaning a period of three years, no matter which day you start on). The fund may invest in another fund or funds which provide exposure to a range of assets including shares, fixed interest securities, money market instruments, property, commodities, renewable energy and infrastructure. The fund has a dynamic asset allocation process which means its allocations to different asset classes can vary over time and may use a range of strategies including the use of derivatives. The fund may invest anywhere in the world. The use of derivatives may include long strategies, which aim to provide a benefit if an asset rises in value, and short strategies, which aim to provide a benefit if an asset falls in value. (A derivative is a financial instrument which derives its value from the value of an underlying asset.) The fund currently invests through the BNYM (Newton) Real Return Fund. There is no guarantee that the fund will deliver positive returns over the specific, or any, time period.

Quarterly Fund Manager Review

The Fund generated a negative return, net of fees, during the quarter. Within the return-seeking core, the Fund's equity holdings generated their first negative quarter since the Covid-19 induced trough in March 2020. This was the result of broader macroeconomic concerns, with particular weakness seen in China-related stocks owing to the regulatory clampdown by the authorities, coupled with the fallout from the implosion of Evergrande, a highly indebted Chinese property developer. The key equity detractors reflected these dynamics, with Chinese-oriented holdings Alibaba, Tencent Music, Tencent Holdings and AIA Group all suffering from concerns associated with government interventions across certain sectors. FIS also featured among the detractors after its UK-focused merchant acquirer business fell short of expectations having been severely affected by the continuing travel restrictions. In contrast, a strong performance was delivered by eye care company, Alcon, which benefited from the reopening of economies as previously delayed surgical procedures came on stream. Other noteworthy contributors included Prudential and semiconductor company ASML. The stabilising layer detracted from performance owing to a combination of direct hedges designed to provide tail-risk protection from a sharp market fall, and to a lesser extent a negative contribution from gold. The derivatives protection was structured to benefit from a sharp market fall which did not materialise in full, while gold struggled to shine in the context of rising government bond yields and a strengthening US dollar. Over the quarter, the Fund's equity exposure was bolstered. A basket of animal health care stocks was purchased. The Fund's exposure to the banking sector was increased by topping up the existing holding in JP Morgan and through the purchase of Morgan Stanley. We also added to the position in Sony. Also within the return-seeking core, we renewed our exposure to the Japanese market through a Nikkei 225 call spread, initiated the previous quarter, and reduced the Fund's emerging market debt exposure. Finally, within the core, we balanced the energy exposure by purchasing a crude oil ETC (exchange-traded commodity), reflecting the supply/demand dynamics in the sector which appear to be attractive.
