Total returns are calculated using the sell (exit) price, net of management fees and gross of tax as if distributions of income have been reinvested at the actual distribution reinvestment price. The actual returns received by an investor will depend on the timing, buy and exit prices of individual transactions. Return of capital and the performance of your investment in the fund are not guaranteed. Past performance is not a reliable indicator of future performance. Figures showing a period of less than one year have not been adjusted to show an annual total return. Figures for periods of greater than one year are on a per annum compound basis. The current benchmark may not have been the benchmark over all periods shown in the above chart and tables. The calculation of the benchmark performance links the performance of previous benchmarks and the current benchmark over the relevant time periods.

Commentary

The International Shares Fund returned 3.9% (4.1% for the wholesale fund) over the September quarter, underperforming the benchmark (the MSCI World ex Australia index) which returned 4.7%. The US and Japan were significant drivers of the performance, with the S&P 500 up 5.8% and the Nikkei 225 up 6.9% over the quarter. In Europe markets lagged, with the UK FTSE100 up only 0.5% and the MSCI Europe (ex UK) up 2.5%.

While overall performance was strong, there was significant volatility – particularly during August when the S&P 500 experienced 11 one-day moves of more than 1% (including three declines of more than 2.6%). Markets continued to be sensitive to political developments, namely Brexit and trade tensions between the US and China. Markets were also rocked significantly in July by the inversion of the yield curve, which is believed by some to be a leading indicator of an economic slowdown or recession.

While all sectors in the portfolio were up over the quarter, the biggest contributors to performance were utilities (which increased 13.1% over the quarter) and real estate (which increased 8.3%) as investors continue to chase yield and stability in a low-interest-rate and volatile environment. Consumer discretionary (up 6%) and consumer staples (up 5.4%) were also strong contributors as consumer sentiment in the US continued to show positive signs.

Relative to the benchmark our strongest contributing sector was energy. The energy sector, which the fund does not have exposure to due to our ethical screening process, was down 2% over the quarter. The sector depreciated significantly as uncertainty crept into the market during August and was impacted again by the bombing of a Saudi Arabian oil facility in September.

The fund's poorest performing sectors relative to the benchmark were communication services, which was impacted by the fund's overweight exposure to Netflix (down -16%), and information technology, which was impacted by the fund not holding Apple (up 18% over the quarter).
