Quarterly manager commentary

Market Update

Markets finished the quarter on the same low volatility high return note that we have enjoyed so far this year, brushing off weak data and seeing the positive in the latest inflation and economic data. To put this in context, most diversified portfolios have delivered the kind of returns we might have expected for the whole year in just the first three months of 2024. Geographically, Japan was the standout performer for the entire quarter. Europe showed little volatility, while the US delivered the best returns but with considerably higher volatility, especially among large cap tech stocks.

What had been a very narrow market, dominated by the so-called 'Magnificent 7', has broadened out so far year, with Europe and Japan keeping pace with the Nasdaq early in the quarter and emerging markets, Australia, and the UK joining the party in the last 4 weeks. The Nasdaq has lagged slightly in March due to valuation concerns surrounding the largest tech giants. Long term bond yields have traded in a range between 4% and 4.3% or but hope of lower short-term rates later this year have been consistently pushed out leading to choppy returns from bonds. This seems set to continue with Australian CPI data last week confirming the global trend of stubborn services inflation offset by goods deflation. Then in the US, the highly anticipated Personal Consumption Expenditure Index for February came out in in-line with expectations of 0.3%. In short this again paints a picture of slightly higher for longer inflation and central banks being in less of a hurry to bring rates down. This, along with some more strong industrial activity and inflation data overnight, has pushed yields in the US up to the top of that narrow range again.

Portfolio Update

The My Active Dynamic Portfolio navigated a complex economic landscape marked by mixed signals and periods of volatility in the first quarter of 2024. The portfolio's diversified asset allocation and active management played crucial roles in capturing opportunities while managing risks.

In January, International Equities led while Property & Infrastructure lagged. The iShares S&P 500 ETF (+6.8%) and iShares MSCI Japan ETF (+8.1%) contributed positively, while the Hyperion Small Growth Companies Fund (-2.4%) detracted. The OC Premium Small Companies Fund (+1.5%) and Macquarie True Index Australian Shares Fund (+1.1%) outperformed among Australian equity funds.

February saw International Equities leading the way, while Fixed Interest trailed. The T.Rowe Price Global Equity Fund (+7.8%) and GQG Partners Emerging Markets Equity Fund (+7.1%) boosted returns, while the DNR Capital Australian Equities High Conviction Fund (-0.0%) detracted. The Hyperion Small Growth Companies Fund (+13.1%) and OC Premium Small Companies Fund (+6.3%) were the top performing Australian equity funds.

In March, Property & Infrastructure was the best performing asset class, while Cash lagged. Security selection subtracted value overall, with the Macquarie True Index Listed Property Fund (+9.7%) contributing significantly, while the DNR Capital Australian Equities High Conviction Fund detracted. The portfolio's overweight to Fixed Interest was a drag on relative performance.

The international equities component had a positive month, with the Macquarie Arrowstreet Global Equity Fund (+3.4%) and iShares S&P 500 ETF (+3.3%) being the top contributors. Among Australian equity funds, the OC Premium Small Companies Fund (+3.5%) and Macquarie True Index Australian Shares Fund (+3.3%) outperformed.

Market Outlook

Looking ahead, the market's trajectory will depend on the interplay between inflation, central bank policies, and economic growth. If the Goldilocks scenario persists, with inflation moderating and growth remaining stable, markets could continue their upward trend. However, any unexpected shocks or signs of a more pronounced economic slowdown could lead to increased volatility and a reassessment of market valuations.
