Quarterly manager commentary

Market Update

The growing expectation of interest rate cuts, sooner than expected, was a key market driver over the quarter. This resulted in significant rallies across markets.

In Australia, the share market posted strong gains for the December quarter. Property shares, such as Scentre Group, and Healthcare shares, like CSL, led the quarter's gains. Australian banks continued to profit from higher earnings, while the miners, such as BHP and Rio Tinto, benefited from rising commodity prices.

Similarly, global shares ended the year on a very strong note, driven by clear signs that the interest rate hiking cycle in the United States is likely over. Technology shares, led by the so-called "Magnificent Seven" (Apple, Microsoft, Alphabet, Amazon, Tesla, Nvidia and Meta), were the key performers over the quarter, while global Property shares were also buoyed.

In its final meeting of 2023, the Reserve Bank of Australia (RBA) held the cash rate at its current level of 4.35%, stating there had been "encouraging signs of progress" in bringing inflation down, although they required time to assess the impact and would not hastily lower the cash rate. This more cautious stance adopted by the RBA relative to its US counterpart boosted the Australian dollar.

Portfolio update

The portfolio grew by 6.59% over the quarter, and by 11.98% over the 12-month period to 31 December 2023.

Listed Property was the strongest performer over the quarter, followed by Australian Shares and International Shares. Your diversifying strategies were the only laggards over the period. Over the year, International Shares were the key driver of absolute performance, with substantial contributions also coming from Australian Shares and Listed Property.

Market Outlook

The prospect of a 'soft-landing' scenario seems increasingly plausible. This scenario is where interest rates are lifted just enough to curb inflation without causing a major recession or a meaningful spike in unemployment. This scenario is broadly positive for markets, although we will likely see economic growth slow below the current trend. With this in mind, we currently favour areas of the market that we believe offer attractive value (i.e. markets which didn't rally as strongly in 2023) and higher growth potential, such as global & Australian smaller companies and emerging market shares.

We remain comfortable with the current structure of your portfolio. Consequently, no changes have been made this quarter.
