About the manager

Mercer

Mercer is a multi-national investment manager, using specialised investment tools and strategies to provide robust and diversified portfolios for their clients. The team manages approximately $200 billion worldwide, with approximately $33 billion invested in Australia and New Zealand. With Australian operations commencing in 1972, Mercer's primary driver in portfolio construction is risk management - spreading investments across investment types and different risks to mitigate periods of market volatility and protecting investments from loss. Using a multi-dimensional framework, Mercer uses active management in asset classes offering the greatest opportunity for skilled investment managers to add value while using passive management to manage risk or constructing a portfolio to deliver close to market returns.

Quarterly manager commentary

Market Update

Global equity markets delivered very strong returns over the March quarter, driven by a combination of resilient economic conditions and better-than-expected US earnings reports. Once again, gains were heavily skewed towards a handful of US mega-cap companies with chip manufacturer, Nvidia, leading the way with a 90.8% gain over the quarter. Australian equity markets produced strong returns, supported by encouraging economic data releases and supportive commentary from global central banks. That said, returns lagged international markets on the back of a weaker mining sector based on falling iron ore prices.

Global government bond yields rose in the March quarter. Declining market expectations for interest rate cuts this year, as economic conditions remain more resilient, was the key driver. However, the rise in yields was not without volatility, with yields declining late quarter after the US Federal Reserve Bank (Fed) indicated it still expects interest rate cuts later this year despite the recent uptick in inflation data. Movements in Australian government bond yields were mixed, with international market developments pushing longer-term bond yields modestly higher, whilst some shorter-term bonds experienced a decline in yields driven in part by Reserve Bank of Australia (RBA) rhetoric shifting from potential interest rate hikes to a more neutral tone. This shift, combined with a fall in iron prices, also contributed to the Australian dollar (AUD) depreciating against most major currencies for the quarter. The AUD dropped 4.3% to $0.6521 against the US Dollar (USD) during the period.

Commodity prices ended the quarter mostly higher. Gold prices jumped 8.1% over the period, recording an all-time high of $2,214/oz spurred by the prospects of interest rate cuts in most developed economies. Oil prices were also higher with positive economic data and concerns regarding supply disruptions in the Middle East among the drivers. Iron ore prices meanwhile ended the quarter substantially lower (-28.0%) driven by rising inventories, ongoing woes for the Chinese property sector and government stimulus struggling to gain traction.

Portfolio Update

The portfolio delivered a return of 7.00% over the past quarter.

Australian equities enjoyed a solid March quarter, with the S&P/ASX 300 Accumulation Index returning 5.4%. Encouraging economic data releases and supportive global central bank comments around the outlook for interest rates underpinned performance. Financials (16.2%), Real Estate (16.2%) and Consumer Discretionary (13.4%) were the stronger performing sectors, whilst Materials (-5.9%), Consumer Staples (2.1%) and Utilities (3.4%) were among the poorer performers. Many of the themes that influenced the broader market were also evident in the Australian small-cap sector, which outperformed its large counterparts with the ASX Small Ordinaries index delivering 7.5% for the period.

AB Concentrated Australian Equities Fund returned 3.9% over the quarter, underperforming the broader ASX benchmark. Communication Services and Real Estate sectors detracted the most from relative returns. The strategy is an actively managed, high-conviction equity portfolio of 20 stocks that seeks to generate outperformance through superior stock selection driven by the firm's proprietary fundamental research. Solaris Core Australian Equities Fund returned 6.6% for the quarter, outperforming the benchmark. Overweight holdings in Energy, Consumer Discretionary and Financials drove relative returns. The strategy is style-neutral and focusses on selecting appropriate securities using fundamental analysis to exploit market inefficiencies in forecasts and valuations.

Global equities delivered another remarkable quarter with the MSCI World ex-Australia Index returning 10.1% in hedged terms and 14.1% in unhedged AUD terms. This momentum was driven by a series of positive economic releases, from GDP growth to labour data, which signalled global economies remain resilient. Further, with the Fed, European Central Bank (ECB) and Bank of England (BoE) each indicating rate cuts are still on the table for later in 2024, plus a solid US corporate earnings season, equities pushed higher. Emerging markets lagged developed market counterparts, returning 7.1% on an unhedged basis over the period. China's equity market remained a key drag despite rebounding during the quarter. Performance was balanced between the positive factors of lowered requirements in banking reserves, a tightening in short selling restrictions and an increase in a government-owned investment company's ability to hold exchange traded funds (ETFs), against the negative headlines around its property developer sector.

The T. Rowe Global Equity Fund outperformed its benchmark by 1.0% over the March quarter. Stock selection within Information Technology and Utilities added value during the period. This strategy applies a truly global, high-conviction, core approach and focusses on companies with durable competitive advantages. The Pzena Global Focused Value Fund delivered a 9.3% return over the March quarter, underperforming the broader MSCI ACWI Index as Growth names largely outperformed Value during the period. The portfolio maintains an underweight allocation to the US and an overweight position to Europe. A position that the manager believes presents a more attractive return and valuation environment.

The rise in government bond yields proved to be a headwind for listed real assets, with Global REITs (FTSE EPRA/NAREIT Developed, -0.1% in AUD hedged terms) marginally lower and Global Listed Infrastructure (FTSE Developed Core Infrastructure index, AUD hedged) returning a modest 2.5% for the three months to end March.

In contrast, Australian Listed Property (S&P/ASX 300 A-REIT Accumulation Index) produced a very strong 16.2% return for the quarter. Its largest constituent security, Goodman Group (GMG), was 34.0% higher as analysts lifted forecasts post GMG's raising of its full-year profit guidance based on strong growth in its data centre division.

The Lazard Global Listed Infrastructure Fund outperformed its benchmark over the March quarter, returning 3.3% in absolute terms. Exposure to Railroads and Transport contributed positively to performance. The strategy offers investors diversification benefits to a portfolio, particularly during times of high inflation. Resolution Capital Global Property Securities outperformed its benchmark over the quarter, returning 0.7%. Stock selection in the Diversified, Office and Hotel segments and an underweight position and stock selection in the Industrial segment contributed to relative performance. The strategy offers Global Listed Property exposure with broad sector holdings and many inflation-linked cashflows, as well as diversification to equity investments and investments driven by Australian economic activity.

The Man AHL Alpha strategy returned 6.5% in the March quarter. Strong performances across Commodities and Equities drove returns. The strategy is seen as a valuable addition to the portfolio as it provides an idiosyncratic return that can deliver positive returns irrespective of movements in Equity and Fixed Interest markets.

Market Outlook

Whilst economic conditions in Australia have remained broadly resilient of late, as can be seen in labour market data, Mercer expects growth to slow in time. Previous supportive factors, such as population growth, (low) fixed rate mortgages and savings accrued over the Covid pandemic period, are fading and the impact of tightened monetary conditions growing in influence. Company insolvencies have also been rising led by cost pressures across the building construction sector. Inflation is also likely to slow, albeit less than other developed economies with pressures from residential rental markets, in particular, a key driver.

Globally, Mercer expects growth to remain resilient but may exhibit regional divergences. As the lingering impact of higher interest rates and tighter financial conditions take their toll in the US, economic activity is likely to marginally slow over the next few quarters. In contrast, we anticipate stronger growth for the Eurozone as manufacturing activity picks up and inflation eases. Conditions in Japan are likely to strengthen as it emerges from a prolonged period of deflation. China is also likely to experience stronger growth in part driven by supportive fiscal, monetary, and regulatory policies, as well as a recovery in the manufacturing inventory cycle and potential stabilisation in the housing sector. Stronger growth is also expected in other emerging economies with their central banks better positioned to lower interest rates having raised interest rates earlier and more aggressively this cycle than their developed economy counterparts.

From an asset class perspective, Mercer favours emerging markets over developed markets. A view based on the more promising economic prospects and attractive valuations in emerging markets.
