1 The managed portfolio performance represents total return for the periods. Returns have been calculated using the time-weighted method, they assume distributions are reinvested and are after investment management fees and indirect costs. Total and growth returns include accrued distributions, while income return includes paid distributions only. Returns do not take into account tax payable. ## Quarterly manager commentary

Market Update

Global equity markets started 2025 with a strong January with markets rising to all-time highs, however sentiment quickly turned negative for equities as the Trump administration began implementing aggressive policies against trade partners, seeking to change the balance of global commerce and trade. This has been broadly seen as negative for the global economy and markets, with much uncertainty about the aims and impacts of such an approach.

Developed market equities, benchmarked by the MSCI World index, returned -2.3% for the March quarter, with the largest falls coming in the month of March with a market return of -4.6%. Unusually, the US share market was among the worst performers globally, returning -5.8%. Conversely, European markets had one of their strongest quarters on record with the FTSE Developed Europe index returning +9.7%.

However, the Chinese market was buoyed by a tech-revival with the release of the DeepSeek AI model. This has caused Chinese investor sentiment to improve dramatically.

The Australian share market was weaker during the quarter, falling -2.8%. The ASX reporting season through February was one of the most volatile on record, with companies share prices punished or rewarded for their end of year result and forward guidance.

Within Fixed Income, the US Federal Reserve kept rates on hold. In Australia, the RBA did cut rates in the February meeting to a rate of 4.1% as was widely expected, however Michelle Bullock provided guidance that any further cuts were predicated on lower inflation. Bond markets have displayed considerable volatility but have ended the quarter at similar yields to where they started.

Portfolio Update

The portfolio delivered a return of -1.62% over the March quarter.

The top asset class contributors this quarter were fixed income and global infrastructure while global and Australian equities were the main detractors. At a security/Fund level, the Lazard Global Equity Franchise Fund , 4D Global Infrastructure Fund and the CC Sage Capital Absolute Return Fund were the largest positive contributors, while the DNR Capital Australian Emerging Companies Fund and the Betashares ETF - NASDAQ 100 were the largest detractors.

Portfolio changes during the quarter:

Fidelity India was added to the portfolio during the quarter, as Indian equities offered an attractive entry point.

Market Outlook

The increasing risk of a global trade war has heightened investor fears of a US recession, leading to a repricing of global financial markets to reflect higher risk premiums. Although consensus forecasts still predict that the US will avoid a recession this year, persistent economic uncertainty could impede growth. However, a de-escalation of trade tensions and clearer trade policies could lead to market stabilisation and a potential recovery in risk assets after a significant derating.

In an environment where unsettling headlines often dominate the narrative, investors should not overlook the positive factors that can inform strategic decision-making. Successfully navigating this environment requires a disciplined yet dynamic approach to portfolio management.
